ABSTRACT

The booklet lists special education materials rated effective by the Teacher Initiated Materials Evaluation (TIME) process. Six hundred eleven special educators completed report forms identifying effective materials. The contents are organized by exceptionality area, level and curricular area. The exceptionality area is broken into the following categories: preschool handicapped; mildly mentally handicapped; moderately mentally handicapped; severely/profoundly mentally handicapped; speech, hearing, and language disordered; emotionally handicapped; learning disabled; deaf and hearing impaired; blind and visually impaired; physically handicapped; and multiply handicapped. Each exceptionality area is subdivided by age level and curricular area (including reading and language arts, arithmetic, social development, science, perceptual and motor skills and social studies). Materials are coded according to type (print material, kit, computer software or electronic aid, other or mixed). Each title contains a respondent contact number so reader may contact educators who used this material. Descriptive detail and pricing information are not included but publishers' addresses are provided. (CL)

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this publication is to list effective special education materials so that special educators can easily begin a materials selection search. All of the material reported is material which: 1) respondents own and use daily with children and, 2) respondents believe will be effective in similar teaching situations.

The problem of identifying and evaluating effective special materials is, indeed, a complex one. Many materials evaluation procedures have been developed. However, most of these efforts have been found wanting due to high cost, extensive time requirements, lack of appropriate evaluative criteria, subjective factors which determine material efficacy and a host of other problems. A closely related problem is simply determining which materials should be evaluated. This problem is further compounded by the large number of vendors offering special education and related materials. Our office has identified 1200 special education vendors and, undoubtedly, many others exist.

We believe our office has developed a mechanism for identifying effective special education materials without encountering the above mentioned problems. The solution is, as are many solutions, surprisingly simple. The procedure is called the Teacher Initiated Materials Evaluation (TIME) Process. The TIME Process is based on the premise that special educators working directly with children each have recommendations regarding the materials they are using and have used. This information can be compiled and used by other special educators searching for effective materials.

Early this school year, TIME Reporting Forms were sent to all Indiana Directors of Special Education, community agency executives, and universities. Copies of the reporting form were also distributed through the IFCEC Newsletter. The reporting forms, in postcard format to facilitate prompt response, were completed and returned by 611 special educators. Each reporting form asked for effective materials to be identified by title, publisher, subject area, recommended exceptionality area and recommended level. Also, each respondent was asked to provide contact data so that firsthand information could be obtained from them directly.

The contents of this publication are arranged by exceptionality area, level and curricular area. Thus, to identify effective reading programs reported for use with primary-aged learning disabled students, one would locate the Primary-Intermediate Learning Disabled section. Within this section will be contained a Reading and Language Arts category.

Materials are listed within categories by title and corresponding publisher. Following each title will be a letter and a number (or a series of numbers). The letter indicates the media type of the listed title as reported by the respondent. The letter code used is:

P = print material
K = kit, components
CS = computer software or electronic aid
O = other, mixed

Numbers following the media code are respondent contact numbers. You may contact our office if you wish to contact the actual user/respondent of any item listed. Also, these numbers provide a frequency count of the number of times an item was reported in a category. If one number appears, the item was reported one time. If three numbers appear, three reports, etc.

All information reported was collected by our office during the 1984-85 School Year from Indiana special educators.

At the end of this publication is a directory of Selected Publishers including current addresses. In addition to identifying sources of material, this publisher's list is most useful for planning districts wishing to update current catalog collections.

Finally, we wish to thank the 611 special educators who contributed to this reference. Collectively, these respondents represent thousands of years of teaching experience. We believe their recommendations should be considered whenever special educators are searching for effective materials.

Teacher Initiated Materials Evaluation (TIME) Report

Which Special Education materials are effective? This question can best be answered by teachers and clinicians who use materials daily with children. Please list the two most effective materials/programs you are using or have used in the past.

This is your opportunity to help others, help yourself and identify effective materials worthy of recognition. Take a few minutes to share information which will aid others and you, in turn, will receive a copy of the complete information reported by others. Give a small amount of information and receive a large amount of information!

☐ Check this box if you want a copy of the final report sent directly to you. The final report will contain hundreds of titles listed by exceptionality, level and curricular area.
